

Employability Assessment

An employability assessment may or may not include an opportunity to interview and/or conduct formal vocational testing with a subject. Opinions addressing specific questions regarding employability, placeability, and earning capacity are developed based upon a careful review of referral documentation (medical, education, employment, etc.) coupled with a careful examination of objective employment trend data (wage/earnings, job market, employment projections, etc.) and/or research (job analysis, labor market analysis, transferable skills analysis, etc.). A written report of findings and opinions may be provided.
